The Research Presented

Thesis Title

Titled The Effect of Virtual Learning Environments on Reducing Learning Gaps for Students with Learning Disabilities in Science

Summary Of The Study

This study aims to investigate the impact of virtual learning environments in addressing the learning gaps faced by students with learning disabilities in science. A virtual learning environment was designed to take into account the cognitive and perceptual characteristics of these students, employing elements of interaction, motivation, and immediate feedback. The researcher used a quasi-experimental approach, and the study tools included a pre- and post-test and learning gap analysis scales. The results demonstrated the effectiveness of the virtual environment in improving scientific understanding and reducing the gap between expected and actual performance. The study recommends integrating digital environments into teaching strategies for students with learning disabilities in science subjects, and promoting active interaction as a means of reducing learning gaps.
