The Research Presented

Thesis Title

Titled The Effectiveness of an Artificial Intelligence-Based Application in Improving the Communication Skills of Children with Autism Associated with Intellectual Disabilities

Summary Of The Study

Highlight A study to measure the effectiveness of an artificial intelligence-based smart application in improving the communication skills of children with autism accompanied by intellectual disabilities. The application was designed to address the developmental and cognitive benefits of this group, relying on learning principles and interactive strategies.

The study followed a descriptive educational approach, and the study was applied to the creative works of children with autism within the specialized field.

The theoretical framework addressed concepts of autism, feminism, artificial intelligence, communication skills, and French modernity. The results showed statistically significant differences between the pre- and post-tests of the experimental group.

The study highlights the effectiveness of the application in developing communication skills. It recommended the use of smart technology in special education programs.
